Gov. Gould might get some valuable experience from Gov. Bell just now.

"The indications are that it will be a short term" is the expression being used at the opening of several county courts in Vermont. Is everybody getting ready to stop bickering?

The multiplicity of accidents that are happening at the granite quarries and their varied nature convinces that too great care cannot be maintained by the owners and their employees.

Although the fishing season is more than a month old, and the enthusiasm must have waned, men are still being caught with short trout in their possession. Fishing and game laws are being more rigorously looked after this year than usual.

THE IMMEDIATE RESULT.

An immediate, beneficial result of the publicity given the Reynolds-Neill report of the conditions in the Chicago packing houses is the general cleaning up which has been done since. The Chicago Tribune is responsible for the statement that several of the large firms have been busy since the first announcement of the revolting state of affairs in remedying matters. The surroundings under which the workers are placed have been materially changed, floors cleaned, walls scrubbed and light and ventilation improved, while sanitary arrangements have been installed. These feverish moves, let it be understood, were not made until after the public had been given a chance to get information from a committee of two men who went through the packing houses with the sole purpose of seeing what the conditions really were. While eight of the packers in a signed statement, issued hastily on the same day that the Reynolds-Neill report was published, affirm that the report does them an injustice, several of them conviet themselves by making these prompt steps toward a general cleaning up. Thus we have seen an immediate result from the report, which cannot fail to be beneficial. The subsequent results should further prove the telling effect of this report for the good of the public.

A QUESTION OF TAXATION.

A delicate point in the matter of taxation has been temporarily adjusted by the board of civil authority in Burlington. The Grand Lodge of Vermont, F. and A. M., constructed in that city several years ago a large building to be devoted primarily to the interests of the Masonic organization of the state. The Burlington assessors placed the structure in the taxable list of their city, putting the assessed valuation at $85,000 (which undoubtedly is too high). To this act the representatives of the Masonic order entered an objection and took their reasons before the board of civil authority of Burlington. Now this latter body has just sustained the act, placing the Masonic Temple on the taxable list, by a vote of seven to three. There were, according to report, two reasons advanced why the property should not be taxed; first, that the property was not placed in the list at the last quadrennial appraisal, and, second, that the property is held by a charitable organization. As statement of fact, the first reason is perhaps untenable; but there will be a great divergence of opinion as to the latter. The definition of a "charitable organization" will determine the individual position, and it is this point that the Vermont Supreme court will probably be called to settle. In determining the matter it will be taken into consideration that the Burlington Masonic Temple is not used exclusively by the Masonic body, but certain parts are rented to others. The upper floor of the building is occupied by stores, and on the second floor is a public hall and also offices. The legislature of 1904 passed a law, relating to exemption from taxation, stating that lands and buildings "exclusively used for the support of orphanages, homes, asylums or hospitals" should be exempt. The question arises in this case whether the building in Burlington is used exclusively for charitable purposes and on this will perhaps hinge the decision.

NORTHFIELD.

Observer W. A. Shaw of the United States weather bureau reports a mean temperature for May of 51 degrees, with a maximum of 88 on the 15th and a minimum of 25 on the 21st. The mean temperature of the month for the last 30 years is 53 degrees. The precipitation amounted to 4.56 inches, the average for the month for 30 years being 3.72 inches. Rain fell on 15 days. The prevailing wind was from the south and the month was made up of four clear, 11 partly cloudy and 16 cloudy days.

OUR FIRE SALE

No matter where you are going, it will pay you to run in here first—and bring your bag, so you can carry away a load of these bargains.

We are going to sell everything in the store, regardless of the actual value.

Here are Trousers worth $1.00 and 1.25 that we sell for 80c, and they will wear just as well as if you had paid 1.25.

Fifty pairs of Men's and Boys' Shoes at 25 to 50 per cent off, as good as new.

About 75 Boys' Suits at 25 to 50 per cent off.

Before the tenth day of June this stock will be all cleaned up and we shall have had our store all cleaned out and new goods in from New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

Now there are only a few days to get first-class goods at these third-rate prices.

All 15c Hose at 10c to clean up.

All our Collars at 10c each.

Fifty Men's and Boys' 50c Caps at 10c and 50c each.

Now is the time to act. Run in here before your neighbors have run away with all the bargains.

Here are Outing Suits that it will pay every man to stock up on. You will probably never again in your life be able to buy Suits at these prices. Some of the Suits show no damage but, nevertheless, we have knifed the prices. The Suits which we call damaged are practically as good as the day they were made. Come in and look them over—see how much they are damaged for you. The price is the main thing that has suffered. Twenty Outing Suits at half price, as good as ever. Balance of Outing Suits at 25 per cent off.

F. H. ROGERS &amp; CO., 174 North Main Street.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

 Mrs. Suburban—Certainly. Our cook doesn't like the English language.—Puck.

A Poetic Flight.
 The Editor—What became of the manuscript of the poem "Two Turtle-doves"?
 The Office Boy—I dunno. P'raps it's flew into a pigeonhole.—Judge.

"Break," Etc.
 "How the waves sob and moan as they break on the shore!"
 (Twas a romantic maiden who spoke.)
 "And why do they do it?" she queried once more.
 "Because," said her escort, "they're broke."—Cleveland Leader.

A Happy Couple.
 Wife—What a happy looking couple those two are! I wonder how long they've been married.
 Husband—Oh, I guess they're only engaged.—New York Weekly.

Too Tired to Splurge.
 A girl with a splendid physique. Had a job at six dollars a week. But every evening she said: "She was just too near doid To help wash the dishes or spurge."—Kansas City Telegram.

How?
 Lyre—I thought seriously once of becoming a poet.
 Dyer—What caused you to change your mind?
 Lyre—Editors.—Judge.

The Clever Lady.
 There was a young lady of Butte. Who thought herself very acute. That her suitor might praise her, She gave him a razor. Which suited her suitor's desire. —Woman's Home Companion.

A Mean One.
 Mrs. Poppley—Everybody says that the baby is very like me.

 Papa sat upon an ax. Willie laughed in glee. "Papa nearly split," said he: "It's the same with me."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Thoughts.
 I wish 'twas 6. The factory bell—oh, will it ever ring?
 I wish the time would fly away and the spiders come to spin.
 Oh, if the big machine would break, the pulley, shaft or cone!
 I want to quit at 5 o'clock and then to hurry home.

I wish 'twas 6. The factory grime would fall from my haggard face.
 My head is aching, though I hear there's plenty to fill my place.
 My lungs are inhaling the factory dust; I hear the foreman say, "Faster and faster; you must; no need for this delay."
 I gazed through the open window, and, gazing in the grass, I saw
 To my surprise I recognized the image of an ass.
 And he seemed to be free and happy, so far as I could see.
 I could easily call him a jackass, but what could he call me?
 —Edward Higgins in Machinery Journal.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

"The District Leader" has failed in New York.

"The Second in Command" has been revived in London.

Robert Edison will continue to use "Strongheart" next season.

Lillian Russell is going to make a tour of the west in vaudeville.

Marion Abbott has been engaged for the cast of "The Stolen Story."

Two companies will be sent out in "The Squaw Man" next season.

"The Heir to the Hoorah" will run through the summer in Chicago.

Augustus Thomas is writing a new play in which Digby Bell is to star.

William Faversham has ended his season in New York in "The Squaw Man."

Ernest Ormonde is to star next season in a play called "Her American Prince."

Margaret Anglin made a trial in Chicago of a new play called "The Sabine Woman."

William Gillette will be among the actors who will spend their summer vacation in Europe.

From present prospects the company playing "The College Widow" in Chicago can remain there through the summer.

CURRENT COMMENT.

There is plenty of faith in the future of the Panama canal, but the people are beginning to think it is time for the works.—Washington Star.

Quite a number of congressmen are announcing their purpose to retire. And there are many who will retire, although they are not announcing the fact.—Houston Post.

Why not put a phenix, the bird that rises from its ashes, on Uncle Sam's coat of arms along with the eagle? Witness Chicago, Boston, Baltimore, San Francisco.—New York World.

The name of Hornellville has been changed to Hornell. The new name is shorter and avoids the eternal "ville" which appears so often and so meaninglessly in the titles of American towns.—Buffalo Express.

The happiest people in the world as a class are the independent agriculturists of the United States, with homes of their own, a competence saved, families growing up in honor, every reasonable comfort present and every lawful ambition gratified or provided with agencies for gratification.—Louisville Herald.

Empress Poppaea.
 Empress Poppaea, who was sacrificed to Nero's brutality, was a small brunette beauty, with great, lustrous black eyes and a glorious wealth of hair. Her skin was like polished ivory, and she was so fearful of losing her dusky complexion that she always washed in asses' milk.

Ink Deterioration.
 The deterioration of ink is supposed by chemists to arise from one of the three causes: (1) Moldiness or the growth of a vegetable parasite on the surface of the liquid; (2) the separation of the coloring matter, this being commonly attributed to chemical changes taking place in the liquid; (3) change of color due to chemical action.

MILLINERY MODES.

Hats of Malines and Chiffon—The Sailor Shape Again in Vogue.

For demisaison wear there are many charming hats in malines and chiffons made up in the new shapes. Satin hats are popular at this time of the year. A lovely satin chapeau of medium size has a rolled brim curving up a little higher in the back. The crown is wreathed with the most natural looking parma violets, and standing guard over this bed of sweet smelling flowers is a single large La France rose, placed at one side.

Small hats for street wear promise to be the accepted mode this spring. Of course for the women to whom the little hat is unbecoming there will be shapes of more generous proportion.

The sailor hat is to have a period of revival. In most cases it is trimmed with a band of black velvet going around the low crown, fastened at one side with two ostrich pompons, through which quills pointing toward the back are thrust. The sailor is lifted at the back and tilts well forward. The bandeau is ornamented with a flat bow of velvet ribbon.

Some of the best hats of the spring suggest the favorite marquis chapeau. The brim, though, is rather more closely rolled at the sides. It is usually swathed around the crown with silk or velvet drawn through a large buckle that holds the rolled brim. The back of the hat is filled in with flowers.

The evening hat in the cut is made of white lace. The crown is adorned with a loose, graceful roll of white malines. At one side are a wide ostrich pompon and an egret.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Crab Pots and Feltpots.
 Crab pots and feltpots are exact models, on an enlarged scale, of the cocoon of the emperor moth.

Beatitude.
 If hopes of future bliss come true, We'll tread a path of roses Where all the things we wish to do Are those which duty shows us. —Detroit Free Press.

Fine Vaudeville Show at the Park Theatre.

The Empire Vaudeville Stars opened last night at the Park theatre to a good house and the show made a hit. Each act was well received, which shows that vaudeville is appreciated, when presented by artists. The first act on the programme was George Brown, a singer of comic songs. Miss Edna Carlton, sang several ballads. Ben Johnson, comedian, played the violin with every imaginable thing and played it well. The Goulet sisters in their artistic singing and dancing specialty brought down the house. John McGuire, a boy soprano, also made a hit and Dynes and Dynes, comedy jugglers, who are well known here, are good. The moving pictures, which conclude the performance, are the best ever seen here. The scenes from San Francisco are exceptionally realistic. The performance will be changed nightly.—Rutland Herald.

Will appear at Dewey Park soon.

All Disappeared.
 Hewitt—Have you ever lost an umbrella?
 Jowett—I don't remember that I have ever kept one.—New York Press.

Hard on Her Complexion.
 When Miss Passay was but a child She feared the dark at night, But now that she is aging so Her fear is of the light. —Philadelphia Press.

Why Use Gas for Cooking?

BECAUSE if properly used it is cheaper than wood or coal.
 BECAUSE it is the great domestic labor-saver.
 BECAUSE it bakes, stews, broils and roasts to perfection.
 BECAUSE there is no possible danger of explosion, as with liquid fuel.
